Acknowledgments

This is the final volume of a series of publications emerging from a project on East Asia's Prospects, cosponsored by the government of Japan. It was written in close collaboration with the East Asia and Pacific Regional Office in the World Bank. We gratefully acknowledge the financial backing of the government of Japan through its Policy and Human Resources Development Fund, which supported both the research we conducted in preparing this volume and its publication.

We began working on this book when we were both part of the Development Economics Research Group (DECRG) of the World Bank. However, much of the writing was done at the World Bank Institute (WBI), to which we moved in early 2009. While in DECRG, we benefited from the support given by Martin Ravallion, and in WBI we were fortunate in receiving equally strong backing from Roumeen Islam and Raj Nallari. Once Shahid Yusuf retired from the Bank, Shahidur Khandker kindly agreed to take over the East Asia Project until the book was finalized, and we owe him and William Martin, his manager, our thanks for their generous assistance at a very critical stage in the completion of the volume.

The book began to take shape following the publication of a volume on China and India called Dancing with Giants, to which both of us contributed. The others who participated in that project stimulated and sharpened our own thinking on the topic, especially Alan Winters, and as the writing on the current volume progressed, we benefited from conversations with colleagues who had an interest in the topic. The final manuscript was enriched and improved by comments from Ardo Hansson, Vikram Nehru, and Arvind Virmani; our thanks to them all for sharing their ideas, insights, and views. We are also grateful to Lopamudra Chakraborti and Rory Birmingham, who provided peerless research assistance throughout the course of the study.

Our debts to Patricia Katayama, Cindy Fisher, and Denise Bergeron at the World Bank Office of the Publisher are little short of mountainous. Once again they have expertly shepherded the volume from manuscript stage to final form, cheerfully accommodated changes in the schedule, and helped us surmount some bumps along the way. We cannot thank them enough. Last but not least, the editors at Publication Services have our appreciation for their dedicated effort at polishing the manuscript.

About the Authors

Shahid Yusuf holds a PhD in economics from Harvard University and a BA in economics from Cambridge University. He joined the World Bank in 1974 as a Young Professional and while at the Bank spent more than 35 years tackling issues confronting developing countries. During his tenure at the World Bank, Dr. Yusuf was the team leader for the World Bank–Japan project on East Asia’s Future Economy from 2000 to 2009. He was the director of the World Development Report 1999/2000, Entering the 21st Century. Prior to that, he was economic adviser to the senior vice president and chief economist (1997–98), lead economist for the East Africa Department (1995–97), and lead economist for the China and Mongolia Department (1989–93).

Dr. Yusuf has written extensively on development issues, with a special focus on East Asia, and has also published widely in various academic journals. He has authored or edited 23 books on industrial and urban development, innovation systems, and tertiary education. His three most recent books are Development Economics through the Decades (2009); Tiger Economies under Threat (coauthored with Kaoru Nabeshima, 2009); and Two Dragonheads: Contrasting Development Paths for Beijing and Shanghai (also coauthored with Kaoru Nabeshima, 2010). Dr. Yusuf currently consults with the World Bank and other organizations.

Kaoru Nabeshima holds a PhD in economics from the University of California, Davis, and received his BA in economics from Ohio Wesleyan University. During his tenure at the World Bank, he served as an economist in the Bank’s Development Research Group and, subsequently, as a consultant for the World Bank Institute. He is currently a senior researcher at the Institute of Developing Economies–Japan External Trade Organization (IDE-JETRO).

Dr. Nabeshima’s recent publications include Postindustrial East Asian Cities (coauthored with Shahid Yusuf, 2006); How Universities Promote Economic Growth (coedited with Shahid Yusuf, 2007); Growing Industrial Clusters in Asia (coedited with Shahid Yusuf and Shoichi Yamashita, 2008); Accelerating Catch-Up: Tertiary Education and Growth in Africa (coauthored with Shahid Yusuf and William Saint, 2008); Tiger Economies under Threat (coauthored with Shahid Yusuf, 2009); and Two Dragon Heads: Contrasting Development Paths for Beijing and Shanghai (coauthored with Shahid Yusuf, 2010).
